

Grand Canyon University & Fresno County Superintendent of Schools

GCU-FCSS Cohort Begins July 16

Grand Canyon University is proud to work with the Fresno County Superintendent of Schools to offer a cohort for the Master of Arts in Curriculum and Instruction. This degree helps you prepare to build and implement curricula through a combination of coursework, research and classroom field experiences. Examine the process of planning, composing and delivering culturally responsive and engaging curriculum, while learning a scholar-practitioner approach to curriculum development.

The Fresno County Superintendent of Schools cohort is offered completely online, giving you the flexibility you need to earn your degree around your busy schedule. Enjoy a special tuition rate while taking classes from full-time faculty and education professionals in GCU's prestigious College of Education.

To help you earn your degree, GCU will accept and apply credits from your Induction Program toward the completion of your master's program. These credits can help you earn an education degree from GCU in less time and save money in the process.
